Third debate on interprofessional education and training:

Promoting One Health in the professional practice

Online

03 June 2021

14h30 – 16h30 CEST

The European organisations representing European doctors, dentists and veterinarians, invite you to join the open debate on 'Interprofessional education and training: Promoting One Health in the professional practice'. The event, which is also supported by the European pharmacists, will take place online on Thursday, 03 June 2021 at 14h30 – 16h30 CEST. The organisations representing the dental, medical, pharmacist and veterinary students join the initiative as co-organisers.

This event – the 3rd of a series of initiatives¹ - will be discussing the implementation of One Health interdisciplinary education and training and is linked to the ongoing discussions on the European Health Union Package for the prevention, preparedness and control of serious cross-border threats to health in the EU, such as pandemics and antimicrobial resistance.

The 2-hour debate will bring together practitioners, policy makers, regulators, training providers, academia and students from all European countries to reflect on the value of One Health interprofessional training in enhancing health-crisis preparedness and management. By sharing experiences from human healthcare and veterinary practice we aim to identify elements in the EU legislation to cover those needs.
